

Citizen Participation and Deliberative Democracy Festival

The Festival welcomes policy-makers, scholars, experts, practitioners and activists to interactive sessions of inspirational learning, exchanges, and networking. Participants will delve into latest evidence on how citizen engagement augments both science and policymaking on environmental issues.

Biodiversities Atlas: A participatory guide to building urban biodiverse futures

Ten stories of civic, political and research experiments from big, small and medium-sized cities; with many or few green spaces, with a stronger or weaker participatory culture. Each is a critical reflection on citizen engagement in the design of public policies to make each city more liveable.
